Management’s Discussion of Fund Performance

SUMMARY OF RESULTS

The Fund underperformed both the S&P 500 Index and the MSCI World Index for the 12-month period ending July 31, 2025. The headwinds that once pressured disruptive technologies shifted into structural tailwinds, supported by broadening market participation, favorable policy shifts around crypto, AI, and healthcare, and potential fiscal catalysts like tax cuts. ARK’s research suggests that a rolling recession began in the spring of 2022, when the Federal Reserve raised interest rates 22-fold in just over a year. We believe that waning pricing power is likely to force corporations into further employment cutbacks to preserve margins. Innovation often takes root in turbulent times: when consumers and businesses confront uncertainty, they are more willing to adopt better, faster, and less costly solutions.

Top contributors to relative performance

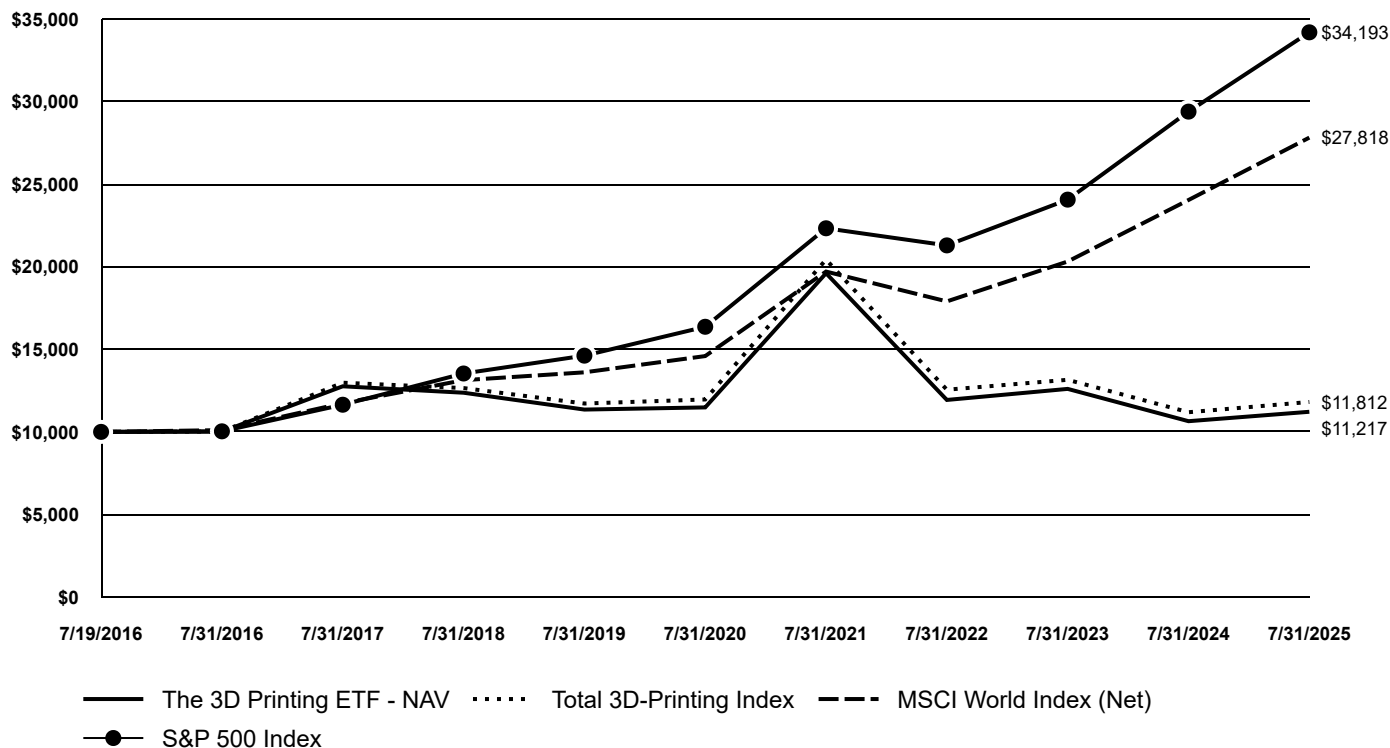

- The top contributor to performance during the period was FARO Technologies, Inc. (FARO). Shares of FARO contributed to the Fund’s performance following AMETEK’s agreement to acquire the company for $920 million in cash, pricing the shares at $44 each, subject to regulatory approvals. The transaction closed on July 21, 2025.
- Additional contributors to performance included Xometry, Inc., Siemens AG, and Proto Labs, Inc.

Biggest detractors from relative performance

- The biggest detractor from performance during the period was 3D Systems Corp. (DDD). Shares of DDD detracted from the Fund’s performance following weaker-than-expected first-quarter results amid a challenging capital spending environment. Citing macroeconomic uncertainties, management withdrew its prior full-year guidance while reaffirming its focus on profitability. Later in the period, the company issued a $92 million convertible note to retire existing debt and extend maturities to 2030.
- Additional detractors from performance included Nano Dimension Ltd., DENTSPLY SIRONA, Inc., Desktop Metal, Inc., and HP, Inc.

Past performance does not guarantee future results. The performance data quoted represents past performance and current returns may be lower or higher. The investment return and principal value will fluctuate so that an investor's shares, when redeemed, may be worth more or less than the original cost. To obtain performance information current to the most recent month end, please visit www.arkfunds.com. Additional information about fees and expense levels can be found in the ARK ETFs' current prospectuses. Net asset value ("NAV") returns are based on the dollar value of a single share of an ARK ETF, calculated using the value of the underlying assets of the ARK ETF minus its liabilities, divided by the number of shares outstanding. The NAV is typically calculated at 4:00 pm Eastern time on each business day the New York Stock Exchange is open for trading.

The returns for the Fund do not reflect the deduction of taxes that a shareholder would pay on Fund distributions or upon sale of Fund shares.
